Key Equipment-related Tasks

- Liaise with Kaimahi to maintain consumables
 - Centre whānau to share when consumables are running low and anticipated needs
- Make recommendations for equipment purchases
- Coordinate repairs to equipment
 - For example, contacting the Menz Shed about replacement puzzle pieces or organising someone to sew up holes in the dressups.
- Coordinate annual stock take with Kaimahi (from 2026)
- ✓ Remember that any large or fixed equipment (e.g. playgrounds) sits with the Property Team's responsibility

Equipment Purchasing

The Kaimahi

- Does all purchasing, in bulk where possible
- May want help unpacking orders – check with them first
- Ensures that the centre is adhering to the budget

The centre's resource budget includes

- Day-to-day consumable resources – the kaimahi will order these automatically (e.g. paint, paper, clay, flour, salt etc)
- Special equipment purchases –whānau make recommendations for equipment purchases (e.g. specific books, dressups, puzzles etc)
- If the requests are within the budget, the Kaimahi will organise purchasing
- If not, the centre can re-prioritise other aspects of the budget within their realm (including adult learning and community events), or seek donations, apply for grants or fundraise for the equipment

The Playcentre Shop

The Playcentre Shop is Playcentre Aotearoa's internal supplier of children's learning equipment: The Canterbury Playcentre Shop: Educational Kids Toys NZ

Centres can order equipment and invoicing happens internally.

Modern Teaching Aides - MTA

Playcentre Aotearoa has a national account with MTA

Modern Teaching Aids - New Zealand's largest supplier of educational resources

In general MTA offers high quality play and learning resources designed for use in a centre-based learning environment.

Where possible, we encourage centres to use MTA as the preferred supplier of equipment.

When sourcing equipment, take into consideration...

Quality of materials. Are they from sustainable sources? Do the producers' values align with Playcentre values?

Durability and repairability. Many resources made for home use do not last long at Playcentre.

Open-ended. Can it be used in multiple ways? Does it foster creativity?

Reflect the cultures of the families in your centre

Upholds tikanga Māori

Avoids gender stereotyping

Suitability for different ages.

Avoid promoting commercialism

Easy to clean – wipeable or washable

Playcentre Equipment Books

The Equipment for Playcentres book includes:

- Recommendations for basic Playcentre equipment based on session size (under 20 or 20+ children)
- Tips and things to consider when purchasing equipment
- PDF version: Playcentre-Equipment-List.pdf

Whānau tupu ngātahi – Families growing together: Report to NZ Playcentre Federation from the working party on cultural issues \(Rōpū Hanga Tikanga\)

- Includes tikanga Māori relevant to different areas of play
- Review before purchasing equipment

Playcentre Equipment Books

Playcentre Publications play book series (some reprinted by New Shoots) also include useful tips for purchasing, setting up and using resources.

Some of the possible options include:

- Look Who's Cooking by Shelley Hancock
- Recipes for Messy Play
- Earthen Treasures by Shelley Hancock
- Woodwork Wizardry by Nic van Onselen
- Dance upon a Time by Tanya Batt
- The World in your Sandpit by Bernard Woodhams
- Creative Collage by Shelley Hancock
- Making Music Together by Maureen Woodhams

Equipment isn't just about buying...

Most Playcentres are already well-equipped, if not over equipped! Being on the equipment team involves

- Decluttering – can some equipment be removed (temporarily or permanently) to make more room
- Repairing – try out equipment. Does the hand drill actually work? Are any of the puzzle pieces permanently missing?
- Making equipment accessible – can children get to what they want without asking for help?
- Reshuffling or revamping an area to make it more inviting.
- Positioning compatible equipment side-by-side. For example, playdough and family play go well together, as do collage and carpentry.

Love an Area – Giving back to the centre

Some centres encourage all whānau to take on a role. The equipment team can be one way to do this through “love an area” roles, where some parents look after one area of the centre – maybe a good tidy once or twice per term and refresh of equipment as needed.

Silly names or regular names, the more the merrier – up to you! The centre won’t fall over without these roles, however having them will spruce up your centre and help whānau feel involved.
